Woman's body found stuffed in bin in Bronx

A 34-year-old woman was found dead inside a plastic bin yesterday morning. Police said that around 9:15 a.m., they found the woman with trauma to her head inside the bin on Macombs Road in the Bronx. Emergency workers responded and pronounced the woman dead at the scene. A police spokesman said yesterday afternoon that no suspects have been identified. METRO/AB

Barclays countdown

Only one day left until the Barclays Center opens! Tomorrow night, Brooklyn native Jay-Z will kick off the arena's first-ever event, with the first of an eight-night concert series. But he's not the only Brooklynite to grace the arena's opening days: On Oct. 11 and 13, Barbra Streisand, also born in the borough, will perform at Barclays.

► New Yorkers love their booze, especially when the hard stuff is made right around the corner ► More distilleries opening in New York than ever ► Ingredients sourced from local farms, hooch hawked to eateries

The economy may be flagging, but New Yorkers' love of booze is keeping one burgeoning industry alive and well: craft liquor distilleries.

King's County Distillery, Greenhouse Ginsmiths, Cacao Prieto and Van Brunt Stillhouse are just a few of the distilleries in town producing everything from rum and vodka to grappa and even moonshine. All of them are based — where else — in Brooklyn, in formerly abandoned industrial spaces.

"These distilleries are a great thing for New York; it's definitely an area of growth potential for the economy," said Jonathan Bowles, executive director at the Center for an Urban Future.

These days, it's not unusual to hear of people brewing their own beer. But it's less common to find someone making their own whiskey, as Williamsburg resident Colin Spoelman once did. Spoelman, 33, started making moonshine on his Williamsburg back porch in 2007.

But he went legit in 2010, with the opening of King's County Distillery, a moonshine and bourbon distillery that operates out of the Brooklyn Navy

What's the law?

Want to set up shop in NYC and turn those grains and grapes to good use? Just be careful ...

► Home distilling of hard liquor is actually a felony, a law that Alex Clark, the sales director at Cacao Prieto distillery in Red Hook, says is likely a holdover from the Prohibition era.

New Yorkers' love of local extends to hard alcohol

Bowles said that craft distilleries appeal to New Yorkers' appreciation for products that are fresher and more unique.

In fact, buying local pays off for the distilleries themselves. In recent years, the licensing process has gotten a bit easier for craft distilleries that source the majority of their ingredients from within New York.

For example, Steven D'Angelo at Greenhook Ginsmiths is producing a deep purple gin flavored with beach plum. The product is similar to the familiar sloe gin, but uses beach plums from Long Island. Beach plums are a significant part of New York's history: D'Angelo noted that early North American explorer Giovanni da Verrazzano talked about the abundance of beach plums in the New York area way back in 1524.

At Cacao Prieto, which produces bourbon and rum out of Red Hook, the whiskey made there has a particularly interesting local ingredient: water mined from the Widow Jane limestone mine under owner Daniel Prieto Presto's property in upstate Rosendale, N.Y.

It's called sweet water due to its taste, resulting from its high mineral content, he said.

"Using sweet water means it remains a completely organic process," Preston said.

How to brew your own beer

Sorry, folks: Home distilling of hard alcohol is illegal, according to state of New York law.

"It's one of the only felonies still left on the books with the [Alcohol and Tobacco Tax and Trade Bureau]," said Alex Clark at Cacao Prieto.

But don't worry, thirsty New Yorkers. It's legal to make all the homemade craft beer you want. To help you get started with your own DIY craft beer brewing, Brooklynite Sebastian Schinkel, who makes his own beer, outlined the steps of what he calls "a relatively simple process."

- 1 Add brewing grains, typically malted barley and wheat, to hot water.
- 2 Steep in order to extract fermentable and nonfermentable sugars.
- 3 Remove grains from water. The water is now called "wort."
- 4 Bring wort to a boil, add hops. Note: Adding the hops earlier in the process means more bitterness, adding the hops later means more flavor and aroma.
- 5 Chill wort to room temperature; transfer to a sanitized, sealable container or jug.
- 6 Add yeast; seal container with a sanitized airlock.
- 7 After fermentation is complete, add a small amount of sucrose and transfer to bottles.
- 8 Cap the bottles and in just two weeks, you have homemade beer!

MTA may discuss new ad regulations after 'racist' ads up

► MTA board to talk about revising ad rules after outrage over pro-Israel ads up now in subway ► Ads called hate speech ► Woman arrested after spray-painting over ads

As outrage continues over a series of subway ads that depict jihad as "savage," the MTA may consider revising its policy on advertisements when the board meets today, an MTA spokesman told Metro.

But the spokesman said it's too premature to speculate what kind of specific changes will be discussed.

Last year, the MTA brought in $120 million in advertising revenue. A small portion of that revenue comes from non-commercial ads — ads that aren't selling something but carry a message, such as the controversial signs up now.

Several groups upset with the ads also said they plan on protesting this morning when the MTA board meets at 9:30 a.m. at the transit agency's Midtown offices at 347 Madison Avenue.

The International Action Center, an anti-war group, is planning to stage a protest against the ads, which remain up in 10 Manhattan subway stations. On Monday night, at least six of the 10 ads were covered by stickers that read "racist" or

"hate speech."

"This week the MTA issued another slap in the face to its riders," the IAC said in a statement. "As if the new round of fare hikes weren't enough, it carried racist, anti-Muslim ads in ten NY subway stations."

Political activist Mona Eltahawy, an Egyptian-born U.S. citizen, was arrested Tuesday night in the Times Square station after attempting to spray-paint over one of 10 ads that refer to jihad as "savage." Eltahawy was charged with misdemeanor criminal mischief.

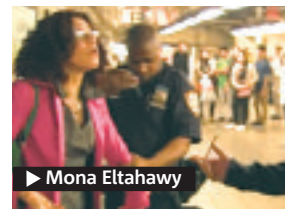

► Signs have been slapped on the ads up now in 10 subway stations.

Is the MTA responsible for the ads?

The MTA initially rejected the ads when the American Freedom Defense Initiative, headed by Pamela Geller, tried to purchase them.

The MTA lost the case in federal court in July on grounds of free speech. But the IAC said they are still holding the transit authority responsible for the ads. "Their official stance on [the ads] is that their hands are tied, but they say that whenever they do something people don't like," IAC spokesman Tony Murphy told Metro.

Dine well and save cash at these restaurants

- Meet Michelin's 'Bib Gourmand' list of restaurants
- These eateries ranked as the best value for the money
- This year, a record 126 NYC restaurants make the list

We all know it's oftentimes prohibitively expensive to eat out, especially here in New York City.

But where can you get the best value for your dollar within the five boroughs?

Michelin released its "Bib Gourmand" awards yesterday, the esteemed guide's list of restaurants that offer the best value for the money in New York.

And this year, a record 126 restaurants made the list.

The list of establishments that provide two courses and a glass of wine for $40 or less (plus tax and gratuity) is up from 114 last year and spans 31 cuisines, Michelin said yesterday in an e-mailed release.

The value-for-the-money accolade is known as a Bib Gourmand.

The winners

The winners were named a week before the planned release of "Michelin Guide New York City 2013," which will include establishments that were awarded stars. The U.K. and Ireland guide is scheduled for Oct. 4.

fuku Noodle Bar and Momofuku Ssam Bar remain on the Bib Gourmand list.

Battersby, a casual venue in Brooklyn, is one of the many newcomers.

Battersby's chef-owners Joseph Ogrodnek and Walker Stern previously worked together at Alain Ducasse at the Essex House after graduating from the Culinary Institute of America in 2002.

Michelin, the world's second-biggest tiremaker, produced its first dining guide in 1900.

It was distributed free of charge until 1920 and intended for chauffeurs.

The guide contained practical information, including street maps and tips on repairing tires. The company is based in Clermont-Ferrand, France.

Man: Organ-donor network too pushy in declaring brain death

A new lawsuit accuses the New York Organ Donor Network of pressuring hospital employees to prematurely declare patients brain dead so that their body parts could be harvested.

The lawsuit, filed Tuesday, alleges that the New York Organ Donor Network pressured doctors to sign off on patients as brain dead, even as one former NYODN employee says patients moved and at least one tried to breathe independently.

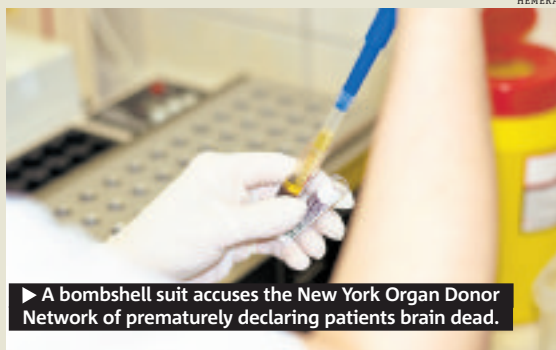

Patrick McMahon, who filed the Manhattan Supreme Court lawsuit, said he was fired as a NYODN nurse practitioner in 2011 as a transplant coordinator for the Network after being called a "troublemaker" for protesting the practice.

"It was like a horror movie," McMahon told Metro. "I would show them that somebody has brain function and that they're moving, and in one of the cases the person I was working with ... goes, 'What kind of life would they have anyway?' And this person had been signed off on dead."

He added, "It was just appalling."

The lawsuit cites an example of a 19-year-old who was in a car wreck and admitted in critical condition.

The teen made an effort to breathe and showed other signs of brain activity, according to the court documents, but the Network allegedly "aggressively pursued" having him declared brain dead.

The lawsuit also recounts a woman given a paralytic before the operation, which court documents note as "out of the ordinary" because organ donors should be already deceased and not need muscle paralytic.

"I want the courts to intervene and stop this behavior," McMahon said. "I want people to know that this is out there."

In a statement given out to the media, the Network said its employees play no role in declaring brain death.

"The allegations made by a former employee are baseless and an affront to the work that the New York Organ Donor Network is doing in the New York City area to save and improve the lives of New Yorkers through organ donation and transplantation," the statement added.

Cops kill man armed with knife

MORNINGSIDE HEIGHTS. Police shot and killed a knife-wielding man Tuesday night. According to police, cops responded to a woman reporting a man with a knife inside a Morningside Avenue apartment.

The 28-year-old man came out of the apartment with a foot-long kitchen knife. The man advanced toward police, they said, and did not comply with orders to drop the knife.

The man slashed the vest of one officer with his knife and punctured a first aid kit on another officer's vest. Then officers fired, striking him in the torso. ● METRO/AB

Studies question value of organic; consumers' green goals are fading

GETTY IMAGES

The organic foods market is abuzz, and not in a good way. A study released by Stanford University last week asked if "paying a premium" for quality organic food stuffs was really "worth it."

Unfortunately for the organics market, the answer from Stanford researchers was "not really."

"Despite the widespread perception that organically produced foods are more nutritious than conventional alternatives, we did not find robust evidence to support this perception," the study says.

The study goes on to note that the organics market has grown from $3.7 billion in 1997 to $26.7 billion today, with consumers saying they want to live a so-called "green lifestyle" no matter what research studies say — at least for now, and with financial limitations in place.

Another study, this one released Monday by GfK Green Gauge, says green culture has gone "mainstream" in recent years but finds some limits. "At a time of slow economic recovery, paying significantly more to be environmentally friendly simply doesn't compute for most people," the study says.

"Green awareness is indeed pervasive — but consumers can perceive 'green' claims as a negative in some contexts," said Timothy Kenyon, director for GfK's Green Gauge survey. "For example, while terms like 'organic' and 'recyclable' have strong positive resonance, they are often associated with higher prices." MAINSTREET.COM

The study

- The GfK study indicates consumers are striving to achieve some balance in living the green lifestyle. They want to embrace the culture but won't open their pocket-books too much to meet their organic living goals.
- The organics market has grown from $3.7 billion in 1997 to $26.7 billion today.

73%

of American adults have bought an organic product in the past year, including foodstuff, household supplies and clothing.

93%

say they have taken steps to "conserve energy" during the past year, and 77% say they have "done something" to conserve water.

29%

of study respondents are turning to mobile phone apps to improve their green lifestyles, especially for help in finding public transportation.

Soldier faces manslaughter rap in hiccups killing at base

A Fort Hood soldier who shot dead a fellow soldier in an ill-fated attempt to cure him of the hiccups has been charged with manslaughter, authorities said yesterday.

The incident occurred when Private First Class Isaac Lawrence Young, 22, came down with a case of the hiccups while the soldiers were watching a football game on television Sunday night.

In an attempt to scare the hiccups out of his friend, Private First Class Patrick Edward Myers, 27, pointed a handgun at Young and fired once, according to an arrest affidavit. A bullet struck Young in his eye.

Police said Myers admitted to shooting Young and told responders on the scene the shooting was an accident. Myers said he thought he had loaded the gun with dummy rounds, according to police.

The soldiers had been drinking, police said.

Young later died in an ambulance. REUTERS

$1M

Myers was charged with manslaughter and is being held on $1 million bond.

Five hiccup cures

- 1 Drink about a half a teaspoon of pickle juice every 7-10 seconds until hiccups stop.
- 2 Drink a normal-sized gulp of water, but don't swallow. Leave the water in your mouth. Pull down both your earlobes. Tilt your head back. Swallow.
- 3 Get a pencil and bite down on it, so that it's sitting horizontally between your teeth. Drink a glass of water with the pencil still in your mouth. Drink as much of the water as you can without the pencil falling out.
- 4 Stick your tongue out. Hold it with your hand if you need to. Keep your tongue stuck out for several minutes.
- 5 Get a big tablespoon of peanut butter. Put it in your mouth and hold it for five seconds. Swallow the peanut butter without chewing. METRO

TAKE THIS TO THE BANK: BIG DONORS GET WHAT THEY PAY FOR

Earlier this week, Mitt Romney came out in favor of regulating campaign finance — but only for donors that contribute overwhelmingly to Democrats.

Asked about the teachers union strike in Chicago, Romney said that the real problem is not their ability to strike — but their ability to give money to politicians. "We simply can't have a setup where the teachers unions can contribute tens of millions of dollars to the campaigns of politicians and then those politicians, when elected, stand across from them at the bargaining table, supposedly to represent the interests of the kids," Romney explained, adding that, to avoid this conflict of interest, teachers unions should not be permitted to contribute to political campaigns.

Indeed, it's hard to trust a politician who is notoriously greased by one side of a dispute.

Mitt Romney would have to admit, then, that he has a massive conflict of interest when it comes to the big banks. All of Mitt Romney's top donors work for the big banks. By contrast, none of Barack Obama's top donors are banks; they are accounting and law firms, universities, software companies and (not surprisingly) federal government employees. By Romney's own logic, Obama is far more likely to put the country's interests ahead of the big banks, so massive and one-sided are the banks' contributions to the Romney campaign.

Of course, it was Barack Obama in 2008 who received the overwhelming share of his campaign cash from the big banks, and look what they bought. For treasury secretary, Obama chose Tim Geithner — the president of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York who, from 2003-2009, was responsible for regulating the big banks (heck of a job, Timmy).

Obama's Justice Department has failed to prosecute a single banker, despite evidence of rampant fraud. The big banks are still exposed to more than $200 trillion in derivatives bets — an

'Bachelorette' stars: Faking it for fame

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

The new issue of Us Weekly has a very entertaining cover story on how "Bachelorette" stars Emily Maynard and Jef Holm are faking their engagement.

I know, I know: It's hard to believe that two fame junkies pretended to be together on a rigged reality TV show to gain attention, but stay with me here.

Apparently, Holm's former girlfriend and current hookup buddy (who he was dating when he went on "The Bachelorette") went into tell-all mode to Us Weekly. The ex, Kaylee Shepherd, says that Holm revealed to her that he and Maynard are faking it. In August, a "texting scandal" hit — Maynard was caught sexting another man, which Us Weekly, the Woodward and Bernstein of tabloids, uncovered. Maynard, desperate to preserve her good-girl image, hatched a plan to pay off Holm with half of her

"Bachelorette" money. "Jef said their relationship isn't what it seems. It's all basically for TV," Shepherd tells Us.

"It's all basically for TV"? You don't say. Next thing you know, you'll be telling me some actors and actresses get plastic surgery and/or take too many prescription drugs in order to fill the dark void that being famous created. Stop ruining my happy place, Us Weekly!

Kate Gosselin's bodyguard moves on to Honey Boo Boo

Kate Gosselin's bodyguard has moved on from the "Plus 8" family to a new, more up-and-coming dysfunctional brood: the "Honey Boo Boo" clan.

According to Wet Paint, the unnamed bodyguard is watching the whole family, and not just breakout star Alana.

They "like to go out and eat at local restaurants at all hours of the day or night," a source tells the site. This habit prompted the recent hiring of two guards to help with security.

I don't know who you are, fearless reality TV bodyguard, but I really hope you are taking notes for an upcoming memoir. That would be magical.

Miley Cyrus: We are forever

Don't expect Miley Cyrus and fiancé Liam Hemsworth to rush down the aisle anytime soon. "I already feel married. I know we are forever. I don't need the paper right now," Cyrus tells Us Weekly. "I don't know when we will get married yet. We are still enjoying being engaged. I've got so much planning to do with the tours and getting my record out. First I have my movie, then my record — then I'll do my wedding planning."

Question: Don't young, ridiculously famous people know that by now, every time they say, "we are forever," they have completely doomed their relationship?

Talking points

The vampires are back together

It looks like the reconciliation between Kristen Stewart and Robert Pattinson is complete, as Pattinson has reportedly moved back into the Los Angeles home they share, according to Us Weekly. "They are living together and have reconciled," a source says, explaining that the pair recently "had a dramatic makeup." But their relationship may still be on shaky ground in the wake of Stewart's cheating scandal, as the source says Pattinson "is extrasensitive now. He's insecure."

Cruise misses Suri while working

Tom Cruise is reportedly struggling with the stress of a busy work schedule that's keeping him in London away from his daughter, Suri, who lives with his soon-to-be-ex-wife Katie Holmes in New York. "I've got to see her," an emotional Cruise reportedly told a friend recently, according to People magazine. "I miss her." Cruise last spent time with his 6-year-old daughter on Aug. 5, and a mid-September trip to London for the girl was reportedly called off. Still, despite the struggle for face-time, the actor reportedly says he is keeping his daughter as a priority.

Gaga takes it all off

After so much attention was paid to her recent weight gain last week, Lady Gaga is baring all. She posted a stark photo of herself in yellow lingerie on her Little Monster website with a caption that reads, "Bulimia and anorexia since I was 15." And over the weekend, Gaga took to Twitter to inspire her fans with a quote she attributed to Marilyn Monroe (incorrectly): "To all the girls who think you're ugly because you're not a size 0, you're the beautiful ones. It's society who's ugly."

'Bachelorette' stars: Faking it for fame

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

The new issue of Us Weekly has a very entertaining cover story on how "Bachelorette" stars Emily Maynard and Jef Holm are faking their engagement.

I know, I know: It's hard to believe that two fame junkies pretended to be together on a rigged reality TV show to gain attention, but stay with me here.

Apparently, Holm's former girlfriend and current hookup buddy (who he was dating when he went on "The Bachelorette") went into tell-all mode to Us Weekly. The ex, Kaylee Shepherd, says that Holm revealed to her that he and Maynard are faking it. In August, a "texting scandal" hit — Maynard was caught sexting another man, which Us Weekly, the Woodward and Bernstein of tabloids, uncovered. Maynard, desperate to preserve her good-girl image, hatched a plan to pay off Holm with half of her

The 'Perks' of being Logan Lerman

► Already in possession of a solid résumé, the young actor reflects on his high school years, his awkward new character and what it was like to perform 'Rocky Horror'

Logan Lerman takes on some heavy material as the troubled teen at the center of "The Perks of Being a Wallflower," based on writer-director Stephen Chbosky's critically acclaimed young adult novel. Luckily, Lerman's own high school experience — during which he was already a professional actor — wasn't as heavy as Charlie's.

Where did you fit in the social scene in high school?

Well, I wasn't Charlie. I wasn't as much of a wallflower. But a lot of my friends were like him, and I had a lot to draw from. I wasn't very social outside of school, but I did know everybody. I was more interested in making short films and stuff like that. Most people weren't. You have some rather revealing costume moments when your character joins in with "The Rocky Horror Picture Show."

That was one of the scenes that kind of scared me. It was a challenging arc to figure out. I was a little nervous about the whole thing, but those nerves are fuel for all the prep that was so necessary for this film.

How was the atmosphere with your cast members, including Emma Watson and Ezra Miller, when you weren't shooting?

were open 24/7, and we'd just walk in and out of each other's rooms, hanging out all the time playing music. We were like a little family.

Where do you go from here?

Fortunately now I'm in a place where I can kind of take my time, and all I want to do is work with filmmakers that I appreciate. Or take projects that I'm extremely passionate about. That's all that I plan on doing.

Andre Braugher's war games

► The TV veteran headlines 'Last Resort,' playing a rogue submarine captain ► Role allows him to explore 'just the right amount of crazy'

Veteran actor Andre Braugher comes back to television with "Last Resort," an intriguing military thriller about a submarine captain who questions an order to launch nuclear missiles at Pakistan — only to have his sub fired upon by his own country. Braugher's Capt. Chaplin and his crew seek refuge on an island in French Polynesia, making a stand against the country for which they used to fight.

So now it's the week of the show's premiere, an experience you've been through many times before.

In the past six years, I've been blessed to be on three shows ["Thief," "Men of a Certain Age," "Last Resort"]. I'm hoping for an enthusiastic response, but like any nervous parent, I'm waiting for the event. When the numbers come in, they're either very pleased or they're not very pleased. We crack open some bottles of champagne or we don't.

► Joseph Gordon-Levitt and his eyebrows star in this weekend's time-travel action-thriller, "Looper."

Must-see

1 'Looper': Not since "Back to the Future Part II" have we witnessed such a brain-teasing time-travel tale. Starring Bruce Willis, Joseph Gordon-Levitt and Emily Blunt, this thriller follows an assassin who finds that he is meant to kill his older self. Only Doc Brown could explain what this does to the space-time continuum.

2 'Hotel Transylvania': Even monsters need a vacation. While their destination of choice may be the eponymous lodge, the creepy-crawly community is threatened by humans who wish to stay at the resort as well. Adam Sandler heads the voice cast of this animated picture.

3 'Won't Back Down': Just in time to feed off the energy of irate parents and teachers, this David and Goliath story is about a powerful school bureaucracy and the parents and teachers (Viola Davis, Maggie Gyllen-haal) who wish to change it.

4 'End of Watch': Jake Gyllen-haal and Michael Pena star as beat cops who are in over their heads when they start messing with a drug ring.

5 'Trouble with the Curve': Clint Eastwood, Amy Adams and Justin Timberlake star in this light drama about an aging baseball scout.

6 'House at the End of the Street': Stripped of her survivalist persona, Jennifer Lawrence of "Winter's Bone" and "The Hunger Games" takes on a more formidable foe than nature: a community haunted by a double murder.

7 'Resident Evil: Retribution': Milla Jovovich returns as Alice in this series' fifth installment.

8 'Dredd' 3-D: "I am the law," says the judge, jury and executioner of this movie's title, ram-paging through a postapocalyptic future where most are under the rule of a reality-altering drug called SLO-MO.

9 'Finding Nemo' 3-D: This beloved 2003 Disney film about a clown fish in search of his dad gets a 3-D update.

Are you dating a narcissist?

▶ Your guy seemed confident, loving and outgoing ▶ Then he became critical, jealous and self-absorbed ▶ Sound familiar? ▶ Take our quiz

Confidence is attractive in a man. But when dating, sometimes it's hard to determine where his healthy ego starts and narcissism begins. Is your man in love with you — or himself? Does this sound familiar?

W. Keith Campbell, author of "When You Love a Man who Loves Himself" explains how the biggest problem with dating a narcissist in the long term is their lack of empathy. That doesn't mean they don't like relationships — they do — and at the beginning, everything's great. "They come across as confident and outgoing — and even though they seem a little materialistic, they're exciting to be with. Unfortunately, narcissists don't come in with a big "N" on their T-shirts — it's hard to spot the negative signs," says Campbell.

To help, we put together a quiz to help you figure out if your awesome and confident guy is a narcissist.

▶ If you scored a majority of B's: You're dating a no-nonsense dude. He's like so chilled and cool.

▶ If you scored a majority of C's: Your boyfriend is so in love with you that you don't need to worry about him being a narcissist. If anything, he should think about his needs a little more. ROMINA MCGUINNESS

Taking a phone call during sex? Sure thing

One in three mobile phone owners believe it is acceptable to answer the phone while having sex, a new study suggests.

New research collected by British-based mobile company Vodafone — which conducted a study among 2,000 British adults — found that mobile phones continue to infiltrate some of our most intimate moments.

The study revealed that 33 percent of respondents would pick up the phone to answer a call during sex. In addition, 51 percent said it's OK to do so at a wedding and 54 percent said it is acceptable to pick up while out to dinner.

The report also found that most owners have between one and 50 numbers in their contacts, but they only speak to about five to 10 of those on a regular basis. Another recent study by Verifone reports that 40 percent believe talking on the phone is a dying art form.

STOCKBYTE

So what does this mean? Perhaps it's only a matter of time before people start ignoring calls during sex ... and opt to check their text messages instead.

The hookup

WWW.AMBERMADISONONLINE.COM

It usually starts with a brief interaction that — from the outside — probably didn't look too significant. But from that interaction, a crush was born. With every casual run-in, something else would convince you that your crush was perfect. And as you admired him or her from afar, the pedestal you put your object of affection on grew higher and higher.

In the real world, our dating pool consists of strangers that we either meet at a bar, through a friend or online. And disappointingly, meeting these strangers is often pretty unspectacular. But that's not because singles in your city suck. Decades of research on interpersonal attraction show that the more we see a person, the more we like them — meaning there's only so much you're physically capable of liking someone you just met. You can't expect to have a crush on someone you've just started dating, simply because you don't know them well enough.

Living in a city full of people can make it feel like your options are endless. But it's a mistake to jump from one person to the next, waiting for someone who lives up to your every fantasy. No one will. Date conversations illuminate such a small sliver of who someone is. Some of the people you've dismissed might be ones you would have developed feelings for if you had met them in another context.

If you've been lucky enough to actually date someone you spent months fantasizing about, you know that person can't exactly live up to who you built him or her up to be. So while the prospect of dating someone you haven't put on a pedestal for months is certainly less exciting, it is more real. And reality is a good thing, because it's not eighth grade anymore.

Now, we're playing for keeps.

OH, TO HAVE A CRUSH

The hookup

WWW.AMBERMADISONONLINE.COM

It usually starts with a brief interaction that — from the outside — probably didn't look too significant. But from that interaction, a crush was born. With every casual run-in, something else would convince you that your crush was perfect. And as you admired him or her from afar, the pedestal you put your object of affection on grew higher and higher.

In the real world, our dating pool consists of strangers that we either meet at a bar, through a friend or online. And disappointingly, meeting these strangers is often pretty unspectacular. But that's not because singles in your city suck. Decades of research on interpersonal attraction show that the more we see a person, the more we like them — meaning there's only so much you're physically capable of liking someone you just met. You can't expect to have a crush on someone you've just started dating, simply because you don't know them well enough.

Living in a city full of people can make it feel like your options are endless. But it's a mistake to jump from one person to the next, waiting for someone who lives up to your every fantasy. No one will. Date conversations illuminate such a small sliver of who someone is. Some of the people you've dismissed might be ones you would have developed feelings for if you had met them in another context.

If you've been lucky enough to actually date someone you spent months fantasizing about, you know that person can't exactly live up to who you built him or her up to be. So while the prospect of dating someone you haven't put on a pedestal for months is certainly less exciting, it is more real. And reality is a good thing, because it's not eighth grade anymore.

Now, we're playing for keeps.

'Tis the season to give a tech toy

► Kiddie tablets and other tech toys top Toy Insider gift list ► Coming out on top? ► LeapFrog Enterprises Inc.'s LeapPad 2 ► The traditional toys that get a tech spin

Tablets made for young kids and other electronic toys are expected to be found under many Christmas trees this year, as parents who are fans of gadgets such as Apple Inc.'s iPad look for products tailored to the younger set.

The Toy Insider, a holiday gift guide from a publisher serving the toy and licensing industries, as well as major toy sellers Walmart and Toys R Us, all put LeapFrog Enterprises Inc.'s LeapPad 2 on their lists of top toys for the 2012 holiday season.

In 2011, the first edition of the LeapPad was on several lists and sold well. This year, an updated version of the $99.99 tablet has a faster processor, twice as much memory and an additional camera on the front of the device.

"It's going to be the war of the tablets," said Laurie Schacht, chief executive and president of Adventure Publishing, which issues the Toy Insider Hot 20 list. "What the LeapPad 2 has done is it has really positioned itself not to be part of that tablet war but to be an item for younger kids that gets them ready to move into the older tablets."

Toy Insider's list, set to be released on Tuesday, includes the LeapPad 2 in its lineup of toys for ages 3 to 5, and the Kurio 7 tablet from Techno Source is for children who are between 6 and 8 years old. REUTERS

The LeapPad 2 is poised to become a top-seller this Christmas season.

Traditional toys get a tech spin

Some toys this year take a traditional product and give it a tech spin. With the My Magical Wand Cinderella from JAKKS Pacific Inc.'s TollyTots unit, when a child waves the wand, the doll tells a story and images light up on her skirt.

Meanwhile, another toy brings a digital game into the physical world. Hasbro's Words With Friends Luxe is a board game based on the digital game from Zynga Inc.

Other hot toys

Other toys on the Toy Insider list include the Lego Friends Heartlake Stables, a Lego set geared toward girls.

► A new high school play set for Mattel's Monster High is on lists from Toy Insider and Walmart.
► Activision Blizzard Inc.'s Skylanders series of video games and action figures is on the Toy Insider list and the Toys R Us list after a strong 2011 launch, with the Skylanders Giants coming out this year.

► Eleven of the 20 items on the Toy Insider list have manufacturers' suggested prices of less than $50.

Does your child experience severe temper outbursts?

Free evaluations of children ages 5-9 are available as part of a brain imaging research study.

Participation is voluntary & compensation is provided.

Five-year-olds put to the test

- ▶ Put down those stickers and stacking blocks, kiddo
- ▶ Kindergarten standardized tests are gaining steam

With school in full swing across the United States, the littlest students are getting used to the blocks table and the dress-up corner — and that staple of American public education, the standardized test.

A national push to make public schools more rigorous and hold teachers more accountable has led to a vast expansion of testing in kindergarten. And more exams are on the way, including a test meant to determine whether 5-year-olds are on track to succeed in college and career.

Paul Weeks, a vice president at test developer ACT Inc., says he knows that particular assessment sounds a bit nutty — especially since many kindergartners aspire to careers as superheroes. “What skills do you need for that, right? Flying is good. X-ray vision?” he said, laughing.

But ACT will soon roll out college and career-readiness exams for kids age 8 through 18 and Weeks said developing similar tests for younger ages is “high on our agenda.” Asking kids to predict the ending of a story or to suggest a different ending, for instance, can identify the critical-thinking skills that employers prize, he said. “There are skills that we’ve identified as essential for college and career success, and you can back them down in a grade-appropriate manner,” Weeks said. “Even in the early grades, you can find students who may be at risk.”

Advocates say it’s vital to test early and often because too many kids fall irretrievably behind in their first years of schooling. The most recent national exams for fourth graders found just 34 percent proficient in reading and 40 percent proficient in math.

Opponents counter that testing puts undue stress on 5- and 6-year-olds and cuts into the time they should be spending playing, singing and learning social skills. They also contend that most tests for kindergartners are unreliable because the children have short attention spans and often find it difficult to demonstrate skills on demand. REUTERS

Accountability

The federal law known as No Child Left Behind has put pressure on schools to raise scores on the standardized reading and math tests given to students starting around age 8.

- ▶ Schools that post poor scores are labeled failing; principals and teachers can lose their jobs. With the stakes so high, many administrators have decided to start testing in the earlier grades to give kids practice and identify students who need help.

- ▶ After all, taxpayers are investing more than $500 billion a year in public education and “we need to know how children are progressing,” said Jacqueline Jones, a deputy assistant secretary in the U.S. Department of Education. “There has to be some accountability,” she said.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. If you're trying to come up with the best solution to a present problem, scan your memory bank to find a situation you handled successfully that is similar to the one you're now dealing with. ♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Make it a point to associate with one of your more successful friends. This far-seeing pal might have the answer that'll put you on the road to something positive. ♏ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. You're not likely to make any excuses in order to dodge a difficult but necessary decision. Although what you come up with may call for some diplomacy, you can handle it. ♏ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Your willingness to help another could result in a rewarding twist of fate. Although your motives will be totally unselfish, you stand to gain a lot. ♏ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. One of your best natural assets is your ability to manage people without breeding resentment. They'll perceive that your directives are responsible and that you bear everyone's welfare in mind. ♏ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. The cycle you're presently in can result in unusually large rewards if you complete a job on time. It behooves you to stick to a schedule. ♏ Aries March 21-April 19. Salesmanship is one of your best assets, and you'll show it off with pride. Others will want what you're selling without realizing that it was you who put the desire in their heads. ♏ Taurus April 20-May 20. Because of the way you handle your affairs, it could be another red-letter day for you. Your financial picture will make some huge gains. ♏ Gemini May 21-June 20. This is one of those days when you're likely to speak your mind whether you have allies or not. You won't leave any doubt in the minds of others as to where you stand. ♏ Cancer June 21-July 22. Go after what's owed you, because it isn't likely you'll find a better day to collect on a debt long overdue. Your chances for being repaid are good. ♏ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Your expectations can be realized if you handle what you want in a practical fashion. Be a pragmatic visionary and you'll actually draw good things to yourself with little effort. ♏ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Due to your own efforts, as well as those of persons who are working behind the scenes on your behalf, there is little doubt of achieving some major accomplishments. to stick to a schedule. ♏ Aries March 21-April 19. Salesmanship is one of your best assets, and you'll show it off with pride. Others will want what you're selling without realizing that it was you who put the desire in their heads. ♏ Taurus April 20-May 20. Because of the way you handle your affairs, it could be another red-letter day for you. Your financial picture will make some huge gains. ♏ Gemini May 21-June 20. This is one of those days when you're likely to speak your mind whether you have allies or not. You won't leave any doubt in the minds of others as to where you stand. ♏ Cancer June 21-July 22. Go after what's owed you, because it isn't likely you'll find a better day to collect on a debt long overdue. Your chances for being repaid are good. ♏ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Your expectations can be realized if you handle what you want in a practical fashion. Be a pragmatic visionary and you'll actually draw good things to yourself with little effort. ♏ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Due to your own efforts, as well as those of persons who are working behind the scenes on your behalf, there is little doubt of achieving some major accomplishments. Once just something Chileans added to Coca-Cola for a buzzy cocktail, the versatile spirit is now getting a redo in the states

THE RISE OF PISCO

A “Piscola” — a pisco and Coke — is so popular and prevalent in Chile that it's the unofficial national drink of the country. But now that Chilean distributors are setting their sights on the American market, savvy mixologists are proving that pisco deserves a lot more than to just be mixed with soda.

Jason Littrell of Jbird is one of those recent converts. Working with Chilean pisco, he and several other area bartenders created libations to serve throughout September to celebrate Chilean Independence (Sept. 18).

“It's delicious. It's an excellent substitute for vodka for people who want more flavor without the calories,” he notes. “It's a well-thought-out spirit. Plus, I love that Chilean pisco is about tradition and pride.”

Littrell is currently pouring his creation, a Pisco y Tamarindo (recipe on the right), but he also suggests creating your own libation at home. “Right now, I recommend using berries — raspberries and blueberries — and I'm a sucker for cinnamon. But really, it's hard to go wrong with just a pisco sour.”

A guide to Pisco

Chilean pisco is smoother than tequila with more flavor than vodka and has various styles, including white (or “transparent” or “unaged”), Guarda pisco (aged no less than 180 days), aged pisco (rests for at least a year) and small batch pisco, which is handcrafted in the most traditional of fashions.

Cocktail recipe

Pisco y Tamarindo

By Jason Littrell, Jbird
339 E. 75th St.

- ▶ 2 oz Chilean Pisco
- ▶ 4 oz Jarritos Tamarindo
- ▶ Pinch of salt
- ▶ Squeeze of lime

Pour pisco and Jarritos in a highball glass over ice. Add pinch of salt and squeeze of lime. Swirl and garnish with a lime or orange.

Mexican flavors cross the border

Hot chef: Sam Richman

It was a trip to Mexico that sealed the deal for chef Sam Richman.

"I wanted to take some time off and just not cook for a couple months, so I went to Mexico with a friend of mine. ... You work in a kitchen for a long time, some things start to become routine. In Mexico, after I was there for a couple of weeks and eating some really, really amazing food, I just had this feeling that I really, really want to cook — I liked this food so much that I was inspired to make it myself."

Richman is now manning the kitchen at Gran Electrica, a DUMBO hot spot where, sure, you'll find tacos and flan, ► Sam Richman brings Mexico to DUMBO at Gran Electrica (5 Front St., 718-852-2789). The wallpaper was custom-made for the restaurant — it depicts old Day of the Dead art reimagined for modern-day Brooklyn.

but if you're curious, you can also experience regional Mexican flavors like those Richman found on his travels abroad.

How do you make sure your cooking is authentic Mexican?

Having gone to Mexico and tasted amazing tortillas, and not just tortillas but all the other things you do with masa ... you have to get the tortilla stuff right because that is the foundation of the cuisine. We're so fortunate — I don't know how we could go about doing this without having Tortilleria Nixtamal in New York.

Juices flowin'

What would you cook to impress a date?

► Does it have to be Mexican? At the moment I would probably make a tomato salad, which is the best thing you could eat right now. Now is definitely the time to indulge in them, as they won't be around much longer. The best tomatoes don't really need much else — a little bit of olive oil, salt, pepper and a splash of sherry.

... [They] make tortillas from freshly ground masa instead of using masa flour.

How do you think some Mexican restaurants could be better? My favorite spots are generally little hole-in-the-wall places because the flavors generally are correct. It tastes amazing, but they're not really using great ingredients. I don't really feel responsible as an eater eating them, and I don't think you can make great food with inferior ingredients.

Cocktail of the week

Mr. Beam's Sake Cider

Need an excuse to drink on a Monday? Of course you don't. But since Monday happens to be International Sake Day, we recommend kicking back at happy hour with a sake drink to drown your Monday blues. Stop by Haru Sushi's Gramercy Park, Wall Street, Broadway and Sake Bar locations for signature hot sake for under five bucks and specialty cocktails with sake for $7.50 from 3 to 7 p.m. If you can't make it, fix up this sucker, which incorporates apple cider — perfect for fall.

► Hello, gorgeous.

How to make it:

- 1.5 oz Jim Beam Black
- 1.5 oz Sho Chiku Bai Cold Sake
- 3.0 oz Fresh apple cider
- 0.2 oz Sour mix

1 Pour all contents over ice, shake vigorously, strain and serve straight-up in a cosmo glass.

2 Rim the glass with a 50/50 mix of nutmeg and white sugar.

Glitch Bangers

Just when you think you understand what the latest genre of music is, a new one comes along. Be ahead of the curve on the next one though. It's called complextro!

► The term was coined by rising young producer Porter Robinson, and the music is a glitchy subgenre of electro-house that's influenced by chiptune, funky breaks and 1980s-era analog synths. If that sounds daunting, just listen to the Complextro Glitch Bangers playlist at www.metro.us/songza and www.songza.com/listen/complextro-glitch-bangers-songza.

► The music is high-energy, lose-your-mind stuff with hints of tunes you already know. Majai's "Change My Mind" (Revolv'r Remix) borrows bits from "Pump Up the Jam" and "Feel Good Inc." by Gorillaz. In Chris Lake's "Sundown" (Lazy Rich Remix) you'll hear hints of "The Bed's Too Big Without You" by The Police. But these bits are almost rendered unrecognizable by the adrenalinized beats and core-vibrating bass tones.

Twin Shadow (DJ set)

Friday, 11:59 p.m.
Brooklyn Bowl
61 Wythe St.
Williamsburg, $8

"Confess," Twin Shadow's latest album, has been on repeat for quite a few folks since it came out this past July, and a night spent listening to him select songs as DJ might shed some light on his influences.

JASON DIAMOND

ART

Dolly Faibyshev: 'High Life'
Through Oct. 26, Hudson River Club, 505 W. 37 St., Free
Dolly Faibyshev's first NYC solo photography exhibition is a vibrant technicolor portrayal of routine — and often wacky — Americana that ranges from rodeo riders to coifed show dogs and their equally manicured owners. ELANA LEOPOLD

NIGHTLIFE

Pink Cookies: A '90s Joint
Tonight, 8 p.m.-2 a.m., Reboot, 55 Gansevoort St., Free
Pink Cookies takes you back to everything classic, this time at the graffiti-filled underground venue Reboot. Be ready for some '90s footage, hits spun by Tekitizi and Unkle Chip and half-priced drinks till 9 p.m. RUTH KARASIK

Bushwig
Saturday, 3-11 p.m., Secret Project Robot, 389 Melrose St., Bushwick, $10
More than 30 drag queens want you to come out to Bushwick and celebrate their awesomeness. There's barbecue and booze included in the day, and it's five bucks cheaper if you show up in drag. JD

► From the nightlife to the pizza museum, why you owe the City of Brotherly Love a little love ► Best bets for your next weekend trip

This fall, pay a visit to Philly

► The museum-lined Ben Franklin Parkway leads to Center City Philadelphia.

Philadelphia: An eater's guide

Philly is famous for its soft pretzels and cheesesteaks, and infamous for its unholy combination of both (this, we regret to inform you, is not a joke). But hiding behind the greasy piles of carbs is a food scene in its prime with destination-worthy restaurants. Here are three worth the trip alone, but conveniently located near other stuff you'll probably want to do.

Tashan

www.mytashan.com

Tashan is serious — very serious — about its food. The upscale spinoff of a beloved Indian takeout restaurant, the menu's a sophisticated take on authentic dishes with plenty of playful winks to local influences (paneer pizza, anyone?). That said, the dining room doesn't quite let the food steal the show. With touches of Bollywood and just plain old swagger, Tashan's the perfect place to settle in for a multicourse ► Amada puts out quite the spread ...

► ... and the scenery isn't bad, either.

Amada

www.amadarestaurant.com

"Iron Chef" Jose Garces has a mini empire of restaurants to choose from in Philadelphia — but if you only have time for one, make it Amada. Since 2005, his posh but understated flagship has been serving up Spanish tapas that are interested in little else but being delicious. No trends, no gimmicks, no reason to leave hungry: Just tasty little plates of crab-stuffed peppers, salt cod croquettes and pork roasted every which way by people who clearly think about pork too much.

While you're there: Amada is in Old City, a nook that wavers between historic district (afternoon), can't-miss art and restaurant destination (Sunday-Thursday nights) and insufferable frat party (Friday-Saturday, from 8 p.m.). Schedule accordingly.

While you're there: Tashan is on the Avenue of the Arts, making it one of the only restaurants on the strip that isn't a pre-theater tourist trap. The Kimmel Center, Merriam Theater and Academy of Music are all steps away.

10 Arts Bistro and Lounge

www.10arts.com

If the Ritz-Carlton breaks your budget, you can still get a taste of the swank life at 10 Arts, which casts a soft pink glow over the hotel's first floor. Dinner in an Eric Ripert dining room still out of your league? Hit up the just-as-pretty lounge for cocktails and a generous bar menu — which includes, yes, soft pretzels.

While you're there: Less than a block away is Philly's City Hall, an intensely, infamously strange structure that looks like it was plucked out of post-Apocalyptic Paris. Go ahead and stare — everyone does.

PHILADELPHIA BOASTS A VIBRANT PALETTE OF ART OFFERINGS IN OCTOBER

After a summer that brought to Philadelphia the opening of the Barnes Foundation and the re-opening of the Rodin Museum, the city is gearing up for an October to remember—thanks to an impressive array of blockbuster shows, sky-high displays, behind-the-scenes tours and larger-than-life mural debuts. Here's why art lovers will swoon for Philly this fall:

Public Art Aplenty:

- The Association for Public Art lights up the Benjamin Franklin Parkway with Open Air, artist Rafael Lozano-Hemmer's towering just-for-Philadelphia visual extravaganza. From 8:00-11:00 p.m., Through October 14. (215) 546-7550, openairphilly.net.
- Murals have their moment in October during Mural Arts Month when the Mural Arts Program paints 31 days with dedications, tours, public painting and special exhibitions. (215) 685-0750, muralarts.org.

Eye-Opening Exhibitions:

- The Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts displays Building a Masterpiece: Frank Furness' Factory for Art, featuring 32 architectural drawings of the Furness-designed Historic Landmark Building. These rare, and in some cases, never-before-seen drawings document the evolution of this storied building. September 29-December 30. (215) 972-2031, pafa.org.
- The Philadelphia Museum of Art opens Dancing Around the Bride: John Cage, Merce Cunningham, Jasper Johns, Robert Rauschenberg, and Marcel Duchamp, the first exhibition to explore the interwoven lives, works and spirit of Duchamp and four of America's most important American post-war artists. October 30-January 21. (215) 763-8100, philamuseum.org.

Colorful Festivals & Tours:

- Philadelphia Open Studio Tours offer one of the region's most extensive opportunities for spectators to go behind-the-scenes to gain a more robust appreciation of the daily lives of artists and the studios where they practice their craft. October 6-7 for venues west of Broad Street; October 20-21 for venues east of Broad Street. (215) 546-7775, philapenstudios.org.

- DesignPhiladelphia fills the city's galleries, shops, parks, streets, warehouses and educational and cultural institutions with programming that honors the present and imagines the future of design. The five-day symposium brings in more than 400 creative thinkers to mount approximately 100 events focused on architecture, urban planning, fashion, graphics and interior decorating. October 10-14. (215) 717-6515, designphiladelphia.org.
- Movie buffs get a chance to appreciate the art of film when the 21st annual Philadelphia Film Festival takes over screens in Center City. Showing more than 100 movies from around the world, the festival also features opening and closing parties and Q&As with directors and actors. New this year: a dedicated Old City lounge space that festival-goers can frequent to talk and unwind between films. October 18-28. (267) 239-2941, filmadelphia.org/festival.

Still Shiny & New:

- In July of 2011, the Rodin Museum unveiled its redesigned outdoor sculpture garden, and in July 2012, museum officials opened the doors to a fully renovated interior. The museum holds The Thinker and a bronze cast of The Gates of Hell. (215) 763-8100, rodinmuseum.org.

- Relocated to the Ben Franklin Parkway in May 2012, the Barnes Foundation allows the world's largest collections of Impressionist, Post-Impressionist and early Modern paintings and African sculpture to be viewed as intended. Reservations are highly suggested. (866) 849-7056, barnesfoundation.org.

Must-see: Philly arts

► From world-class collections to pizza shrines, the city's museums have a little something for everyone

Philadelphia Museum of Art www.philamuseum.org

Perched above the Schuylkill River, the Philadelphia Museum of Art is a work of art in itself. Inside, the 200 galleries don't disappoint either, with some 227,000 pieces from all of the VIPs. On view this fall is "Shipwreck: Wilson Homer and The Life Line," an exhibit examining images of rescue-at-sea in American art. If you're in town on the first Sunday of the month, admission is pay-what-you-wish.

The Institute of Contemporary Art www.icaphila.org

Although probably not on the average tourist's short list, the ICA is an overlooked gem on the University of Pennsylvania's campus — and admission is always free. On view now is conceptual artist Jeremy Deller's first mid-career survey, "Joy in People," an ambitious and playful exhibit featuring most of Deller's major works, as well as a re-creation of his childhood bedroom. While you're in University City, pay a visit to Penn's Museum of Archeology and Anthropology (www.penn.museum), which is home to, among other artifacts, a massive mummy collection.

► The new Barnes was worth the wait.

The Barnes

www.barnesfoundation.org

The Barnes Foundation's world-class collection of Impressionist and Modernist masterpieces recently moved to Philadelphia from a posh suburban outpost after years of fighting between board members, donors and various ghosts of galleries past. Be glad you missed it and simply get to enjoy the new location on the Ben Franklin Parkway, a stunning approach to exhibiting the foundation's impressive treasures.

Pizza Brain

www.pizzabrain.org

Home to the Guinness Book of World Records' largest collection of pizza memorabilia, the newly opened Pizza Brain is part museum, part pizza parlor. It's kitschy, sure, but the team behind this quirk-ball gem is dead serious about the collection and the power of pizza to make us happier. It's also a good opportunity to visit the city's Fishtown section, which is becoming a destination for its left-of-center galleries, serious beer bars and, yes, pizza action figures.

► Pizza Brain is the world's first pizza museum.

Hold the hot sauce

► Ryan backtracks on comments from last week ► Bush blames injury to Revis on karma from own injury ► Ryan: 'Never want to injure a player'

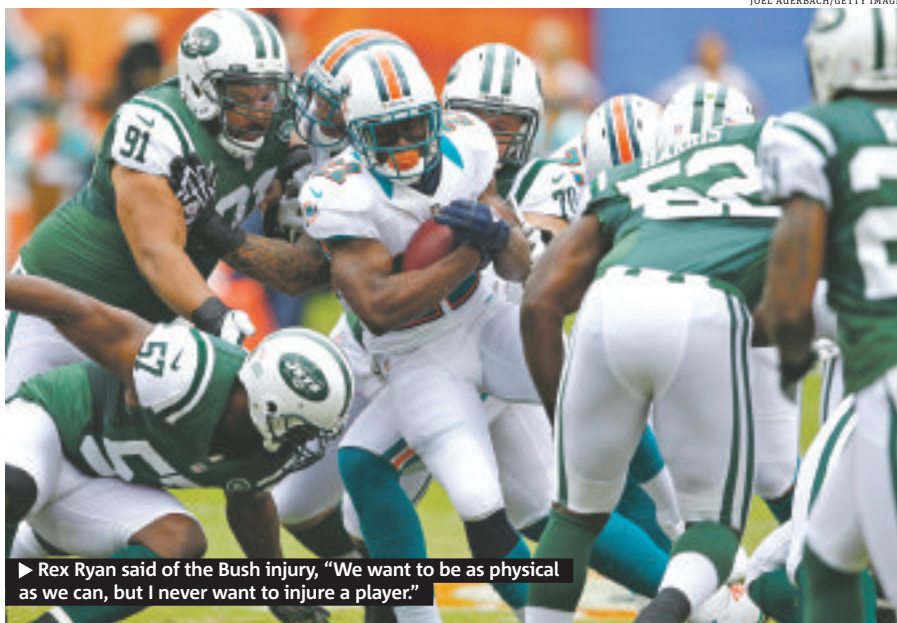

Dolphins running back Reggie Bush has a theory as to why Jets cornerback Darrelle Revis tore his ACL in this past Sunday's game in Miami: karma.

Bush speculated on his Tuesday appearance on the "Paul and Young Ron Show" in south Florida that the injury to Revis was due to head coach Rex Ryan supposedly targeting the Dolphins running back for injury. In the days leading up to the game, Ryan praised Bush as a running back and told the media, "Obviously, we have to do a great job of getting a lot of guys to him and then get him on the ground. Put some hot sauce on him if you will."

In the eyes of Bush, the injury to Revis is cosmic payback. "What goes around comes around. They talked all week about putting 'hot sauce,' this and that and they end up losing their best player for the rest of the season," Bush said on the show. "It's sad that it happened because of that, but I'm going to be back."

Bush was injured himself in the game but his MRI, unlike Revis's, was negative and he should return soon.

Ryan clarified his remarks

► Rex Ryan said of the Bush injury, "We want to be as physical as we can, but I never want to injure a player."

6.1 Reggie Bush had 110 carries for 61 yards — 6.1 yards per carry — before he was injured in Sunday's game against the Jets.

yesterday during his daily press conference.

"The hot sauce, you have to pour a ton of attention on them. He's going to get a ton of attention just like Vernon Davis is going to get a ton of attention this week," Ryan said. "I guess he was took it a different way or something like that. By no means do I want to see anybody leave the field due to an injury."

In the news

Belichick fine

New England head coach Bill Belichick pulled the ultimate no-no for a coach, grabbing an official, and now he has paid.

The NFL has fined Belichick $50,000 for "impermissible physical contact with an official" after the Patriots lost to the Ravens on Sunday night.

Belichick claims he was just trying to ask the official if the final play, a field goal over the uprights, was reviewable.

Bradshaw ready to play

Ahmad Bradshaw is back and will be head coach Tom Coughlin's starting running back against the Eagles, but don't be surprised if you still see a lot of Andre Brown.

Brown rushed for 184 yards and three touchdowns on 33 carries while Bradshaw missed the last two games. But he won't be hearing the name Wally Pipp.

"One year, we had three guys [playing running back]," Coughlin said. "You know, there's a long, long way to go, and we're just happy that we've had an opportunity to develop some players and they will all have the chance to contribute."

Bradshaw, who missed the better part of the last two games with a neck injury, was back at practice yesterday.

The team is emphasizing

► Bradshaw was injured in the game against Tampa Bay.

how nice it will be to have two backs both capable of being starters. The year Coughlin mentions, when they had three backs, was 2007 when the team won the Super Bowl with Bradshaw, Brandon Jacobs and Derrick Ward.

"Andre has been running hard, and doing a good job," quarterback Eli Manning said. "So, having both of those guys come in and play well for us would be helpful." METRO

Nicks' return

While Bradshaw returned to practice yesterday, receiver

Hakeem Nicks was not quite ready. Coughlin said Nicks will likely practice today and should be ready for Sunday.

► "I'm looking forward to [playing]," Nicks said. "My body feels pretty good. I had about a week off, so I'll get out there and practice tomorrow and see how it goes from there."

► "It's an intense game. Their fans will definitely be in it. We do well when our backs are up against the wall."

Fantasy sports

ADAM LEVITAN

ALEVITAN@METRO.US

Fantasy's glamour position is still running back. And it's still as volatile as ever.

We're only in Week 4, but we're already seeing changes:

Lions' Share

Prior to last week, Mikel Leshoure had never played an NFL game. That didn't stop the Lions from giving him 30 touches against the Titans. They've bailed on Kevin Smith and are impressed with Leshoure's skills on third down. If he stays healthy, he'll be a weekly RB2.

► Mikel Leshoure has quickly taken over as the feature back in Detroit.

Quizz Rising

The Falcons are running one of the league's best up-tempo, vertical schemes. Michael Turner just doesn't fit, and it's showing in playing time. Last week, Jacquizz Rodgers led the Falcons' running backs in snaps — and got most of them before the game was out of hand. He's a better fit.

Sharing Giants

The Giants love to use a committee approach in the backfield. Andre Brown's impressive play so far is allowing them to do just that. Even though Ahmad Bradshaw is keeping his starting gig, Brown has earned a major role. Coach Tom Coughlin is hinting at a "hot-hand" approach.

Target notes

► Wayne

QBs are starting to show who they like throwing to:

- 1 Reggie Wayne, IND — Wayne leads the entire league in targets, with 40. Why? Simply put, he gets open. Wayne is a solid WR2 thanks to his volume.
- 2 Danny Amendola, STL — Amendola is tied for fourth with 34 targets. He's a slot machine, but he's also terrible after the catch.
- 3 Darren McFadden, OAK — McFadden leads all running backs with 27 targets. It's a way for him to sustain fantasy value with a bad offensive line.

NFL officials close to return: report

► Sources tell ESPN lockout may end by Sunday ► Refs hammer out final details ► Players withhold criticism

The chaos in Seattle may have been a blessing in disguise after all. The blown call that ended Monday night's game between the Packers and Seahawks has been analyzed and dissected for almost three straight days.

Finally, early yesterday afternoon, a report surfaced that the NFL and its officials were close to completing a deal to end the lockout. According to an ESPN report, the regular refs could return in time to work Sunday's games. One source told ESPN that the last hurdle is "about a little more money."

For the most part, New York players were indifferent to the news — at least publicly.

The Giants, always the least outspoken of the two teams in the city, weren't willing to show any relief either.

"All we can worry about is getting ready for playing Philadelphia. We have to worry about our game plan, going out there, doing our jobs. And if you have the officials' back, that's great," Giants quarterback Eli Manning said. "In our games, I don't think we've had any problems, and we just have to go out there and play football."
